Advisors

CARL A. ANTONUCCI, JR. has spent the past ten years as a reference librarian at various colleges and universities. Currently director of library services at Capital Community College, he holds two master’s degrees and is a doctoral candidate at Providence College. He particularly enjoys researching Rhode Island political history during the 1960s and 1970s.

KATHY ARSENAULT is the dean of library at the University of South Florida, St. Petersburg’s Poynter Library. She holds a master’s degree in Library Science. She has written numerous book reviews for Library Journal, and has published articles in such publications as the Journal of the Florida Medical Association, and Collection Management.

JAMES RETTIG holds two master’s degrees. He has written numerous articles and has edited Distinguished Classics of Reference Publishing (1992). University librarian at the University of Richmond, he is the recipient of three American Library Association awards: the Isadore Gibert Mudge Citation (1988), the G.K. Hall Award for Library Literature (1993), and the Louis Shores-Oryx Press Award (1995).

HILDA K. WEISBURG is the head library media specialist at Morristown High School Library and specializes in building school library media programs. She has several publications to her credit, including: The School Librarians Workshop, Puzzles, Patterns, and Problem Solving: Creative Connections to Critical Thinking, and Learning, Linking & Critical Thinking: Information Strategies for the K-12 Library Media Curriculum.

Contributors

GLEN BESSEMER holds a B.A. in Peace and Conflict Studies from Northland College. In addition, he earned his M.A., Ph.D., and A.B.D., all in history, from Wayne State University. Currently employed at the National Lawyers Guild of Michigan, his research interests include urban history, crime in twentieth century America, and Detroit history.

Chapter: Law and Justice.

STEPHEN BRAUER is an assistant professor of English at St. John Fisher College in Rochester, NY. His research focuses on twentieth century American literature and culture, with an emphasis on crime culture and sports culture. He holds a Ph.D. in English and American Literature from New York University. His article, “The Aesthetics of Crime” can be found in the September of 2001 issue of American Quarterly. Chapter: Sports.

PETER J. CAPRIOGLIO is a professor emeritus at Middlesex Community College, where he taught social sciences for thirty years prior to his retirement. He has a master’s degree in sociology, and he is currently at work on a book entitled, The Glory of God’s Religions:

Chapter: Religion.

JAMES N. CRAFT has been the president and owner of Southill, LLC in Royal Oak, Michigan, since 1999. He is also a senior consultant for Lee Hecht Harrison. He has previously worked as a history teacher and as a curriculum consultant for the Detroit Historical Museum and the Detroit 300 Committee. His research interests include the nineteenth century (particularly the 1840s), the Progressive Era, and primary source-based curriculum material.

Chapter: The Arts, Business and Economy, Government and Politics, Lifestyles and Social Trends.

PAUL G. CONNORS earned a doctorate in American History from Loyola University in Chicago. He has a strong interest in Great Lakes maritime history, and has contributed the article “Beaver Island Ice Walkers” to Michigan History. He has worked for the Michigan Legislative Service Bureau as a research analyst since 1996.

CHRISTOPHER CUMO is a staff writer for The Adjunct Advocate Magazine. Formerly an adjunct professor of history at Walsh University, he has written two books, A History of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, 1882-1997 and Seeds of Change, and has contributed to numerous scholarly journals. He holds a doctorate in history from the University of Akron.

LORI HALL currently serves as human resources consultant for Clark, Schaefer, Hacket & Co. in Columbus, Ohio. She has over ten years experience in human resource management and her writing has been published in the Career Journal. Her personal interests include the study of World War II and family history.

Chapter: The Arts.

JENNIFER HELLE holds bachelor’s degrees in Religious Studies and English Education, as well as a master’s degree in Curriculum and Instruction, all from the University of Kansas. She has been an adjunct associate professor at Johnson County Community College in Kansas since 1998. She is currently at work on a dissertation on contemporary women’s religious literature.

Chapter Chronology, General Resources: Religion.

DAVID M. HOLFORD has worked as an adjunct instructor at Ohio University, Park College, and Columbus State Community College; education curator for the Ohio Historical Society; and held editorial positions at Glencoe/McGraw Hill and Holt, Rinehart, and Winston. He also holds a doctorate degree in History from Ohio State University. A freelance writer/editor since 1996, he has published Herbert Hoover (1999) and Abraham Lincoln and the Emancipation Proclamation (2002).

Chapter Chronology, General Resources: Lifestyles and Social Trends, The Media.

LISA R. LAWSON earned her bachelor’s degree in History from Texas A&M University at Commerce. A freelance writer and editor, she lives in Trenton, TX. Her interests include history, philosophy, and politics.

Chapter: Fashion and Design.

NADINE FRANCE MARTINE PINÈDE serves as program coordinator for Grantmakers Without Borders. She holds a doctorate in History, Philosophy, and Policy Studies in Education and an M.A. in Philanthropic Studies from Indiana University, as well as an M.A. in English and Modern Languages from St. John’s College and a B.A. in Literature and Social Criticism from Harvard University. She has contributed articles to such publications as The New York Times and Radcliffe Quarterly.

Chapter: Education.

DAN PROSTERMAN is an adjunct professor of history at St. Francis College, as well as an adjunct lecturer at Pace University. He holds an M.A. in History at New York University and is working on his doctoral dissertation on the subject of anti-Communism in New York City during the Great Depression and World War II.

Chapter: The Media.

LORNA BIDDLE RINEAR is the editor and co-author of The Complete Idiot’s Guide to Women’s History. A Ph.D. candidate at Rutger’s University, she holds a B.A. from Wellesley College and a master’s degree from Boston College. She resides in Bellingham, MA.

Chapter Chronology, General Resources: The Arts, Fashion and Design.

MARY HERTZ SCARBROUGH earned both her B.A. in English and German and her J.D. from the University of South Dakota. Prior to becoming a freelance writer.
in 1996, she worked as a law clerk in the Federal District Court for the District of South Dakota and as legal counsel for the Immigration and Naturalization Service. She lives in Storm Lake, IA.

Chapter Chronology, General Resources: Law and Justice.

SUSAN P. WALTON is a librarian, freelance writer, editor, and researcher. Her primary interest is the history of science and medicine. Her writings have appeared in The New York Times, International Wildlife, Health, and others.

Chapter: Medicine and Health.