Advisors

CARL A. ANTONUCCI JR. has spent the past ten years as a reference librarian at various colleges and universities. Currently director of library services at Capital Community College, he holds two master's degrees and is a doctoral candidate at Providence College. He particularly enjoys researching Rhode Island political history during the 1960s and 1970s.

KATHY ARSENAULT is the dean of library at the University of South Florida, St. Petersburg's Poynter Library. She holds a master's degree in Library Science. She has written numerous book reviews for Library Journal, and has published articles in such publications as the Journal of the Florida Medical Association and Collection Management.

JAMES RETTIG holds two master's degrees. He has written numerous articles and has edited Distinguished Classics of Reference Publishing (1992). University librarian at the University of Richmond, he is the recipient of three American Library Association awards: the Isadore Gibert Mudge Citation (1988), the G.K. Hall Award for Library Literature (1993), and the Louis Shores-Oryx Press Award (1995).

HILDA K. WEISBURG is the head library media specialist at Morristown High School Library and specializes in building school library media programs. She has several publications to her credit, including The School Librarians Workshop, Puzzles, Patterns, and Problem Solving: Creative Connections to Critical Thinking, and Learning, Linking & Critical Thinking: Information Strategies for the K-12 Library Media Curriculum.

Contributors

EUGENIA F. BELL is a freelance editor and publication manager who holds a bachelor’s in philosophy from Pennsylvania State University. She spent four years as an editor of architecture and design books for the Princeton Architectural Press before working for a year as a publications manager for the Walker Art Center in Minneapolis, Minnesota. She is the author of The Chapel at Ronchamp (1999).

TIMOTHY G. BORDEN has contributed to such publications as History Behind the Headlines, Michigan Historical Review, Polish American Studies, and Northwest Ohio Quarterly. He also serves as reader/referee of Notre Dame University at Lebanon’s Palma Journal.

DENNIS A. CASTILLO received his doctorate in the history of Christianity from the University of Chicago. Currently an associate professor of Church History at Christ the King Seminary in East Aurora, New York, he is at work on his first book, The Maltese Cross: A Military History of Malta. A Detroit native, he now lives in Buffalo, New York.
PAUL G. CONNORS earned a doctorate in American History from Loyola University in Chicago. He has a strong interest in Great Lakes maritime history, and has contributed the article “Beaver Island Ice Walkers” to Michigan History. He has worked for the Michigan Legislative Service Bureau as a research analyst since 1996.

CHRISTOPHER CUMO is a staff writer for The Adjunct Advocate Magazine. Formerly an adjunct professor of history at Walsh University, he has written two books. A History of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, 1882–1997, and Seeds of Change, and has contributed to numerous scholarly journals. He holds a doctorate in History from the University of Akron.

JENNIFER HELLER holds bachelor’s degrees in Religious Studies and English Education, as well as a master’s in Curriculum and Instruction, all from the University of Kansas. She has been an adjunct associate professor at Johnson County Community College in Kansas since 1998. She is currently at work on a dissertation on contemporary women’s religious literature.

Chapter Chronology and General Resources: Religion.

DAVID M. HOLFORD has worked as an adjunct instructor at Ohio University, Park College, and Columbus State Community College; education curator for the Ohio Historical Society; and held editorial positions at Glencoe/McGraw Hill and Holt, Rinehard, and Winston. He also holds a doctorate in History from Ohio State University. A freelance writer/editor since 1996, he as published Herbert Hoover (1999) and Abraham Lincoln and the Emancipation Proclamation (2002).

Chapter Chronologies and General Resources: Lifestyles and Social Trends, The Media.

MILLIE JACKSON is an associate librarian at Grand Valley State University in Allendale, Michigan. She has previously worked as an English teacher and as the special collections librarian at Oklahoma State University. Dr. Jackson’s dissertation on ladies’s library associations in Michigan won the American Library Association’s Phyllis Dain Library History Dissertation Award in 2001.

JACQUELINE LESHEKIVICH joined the Michigan Legislative Service Bureau as a science research analyst in 2000. She earned her Bachelor of Science in Biochemistry from Northern Michigan University and a master’s degree, also in Biochemistry, from Michigan Technological University. A contributor to such publications as Nature Biotechnology and Plant Cell, she is also an amateur astronomer.

Chapters: Medicine and Health, Sports.

SCOTT A. MERRIMAN currently works as a part-time instructor at the University of Kentucky and is finishing his doctoral dissertation on Espionage and Sedition Acts in the Sixth Court of Appeals. He has contributed to The History Highway and History.edu, among others. Scott is a resident of Lexington, Kentucky.

Chapter: Law and Justice.

PATRICK D. REAGAN has taught history at Tennessee Technological University since 1982. He has written over forty book reviews and has contributed to such publications as Designing a New America: The Origins of New Deal Planning, 1890–1943, and American Journey: World War I and the Jazz Age. He is also the author of History and the Internet: A Guide.

Chapter: Business and the Economy.

LORNA BIDDLE RINEAR is the editor and coauthor of The Complete Idiot’s Guide to Women’s History. A Ph.D. candidate at Rutger’s University, she holds a bachelor’s from Wellesley College and a master’s degree from Boston College. She resides in Bellingham, Massachusetts.

Chapter Chronologies and General Resources: The Arts, Fashion and Design.

AMY ROSE taught at the college level for ten years before becoming a freelance writer, editor, and instructional designer. She has published articles on such topics as ergonomics and labor relations. She holds a bachelor’s and doctorate, both in Classical Studies, from the University of Colorado at Boulder.

Chapter: Fashion and Design.

MARY HERZ SCARBROUGH earned both her bachelor’s in English and German and her J.D. from the University of South Dakota. Prior to becoming a freelance writer in 1996, she worked as a law clerk in the Federal District Court for the District of South Dakota and as legal counsel for the Immigration and Naturalization Service. She lives in Storm Lake, Iowa.

Chapter Chronology and General Resources: Law and Justice.