Contributors

James P. Austin. James P. Austin lives in Egypt, where he has been a writing instructor in the Department of Rhetoric and Composition at the American University in Cairo since 2006. He has written radio scripts for Garrison Keillor’s The Writer’s Almanac and articles for The Oxford Encyclopedia of American Literature and Dictionary of Literary Biography: He has previously appeared in Scribner’s British Writers series, publishing articles on Redmond O’Hanlon and Patrick McCabe. MARK RICHARD

Charles R. Baker. A poet, short story writer, and novelist, Charles R. Baker has contributed several pieces to American Writers, British Writers, American Writers Classics and The Oxford Encyclopedia of American Literature. Mr. Baker is currently working on a biographical novel set in mid-Victorian London. He lives in Dallas, Texas. IRWIN SHAW

Jennifer A. Bates. Jennifer A. Bates received her A.B. in English and creative writing from Princeton University in 1990, followed by an M.F.A. in writing, literature, and publishing from Emerson College in 1998. She is the author of the poetry collection The First Night Out of Eden, published by the University Press of Florida. She teaches writing at Middlebury College, where she is also affiliated with the New England Review and the Bread Loaf Writers’ Conference. MOLLY PEACOCK

Nicholas Birm. Nicholas Birm is editor of Antipodes and co-author of A Companion to Australian Literature Since 1900, named Choice Outstanding Academic Title for 2008. His book Understanding Anthony Powell was published by the University of South Carolina Press in 2004. His current project is Theory After Theory, an overview of recent literary interpretation (Broadview, forthcoming). He teaches British, American, and world literature at Eugene Lang College The New School for Liberal Arts. His work has appeared in the Hollins Critic, New York Times Book Review, and College Literature. THOMAS MALLON

F. Brett Cox. F. Brett Cox is an associate professor of English at Norwich University. He is co-editor with Andy Duncan of Crossroads: Tales of the Southern Literary Fantastic (Tor, 2004), and has served as a juror for the Shirley Jackson Award and the Science Fiction Research Association Pilgrim Award. His fiction, essays, and reviews have appeared in numerous journals and books, including the North Carolina Literary Review, Postscripts, New England Quarterly, Science Fiction Studies, The Robert Frost Encyclopedia, and The Cultural Influences of William Gibson, the “Father” of Cyberpunk Science Fiction: Critical and Interpretive Essays. GEORGE SAUNDERS

John Domini. John Domini has published two books of stories and three novels. His last two novels, Earthquake I.D. and A Tomb on the Periphery, were widely praised. His short work has won awards in all genres, including grants from the National Endowment for the Arts and the Ingram Merrill Foundation. His short fiction has appeared in the Paris Review, Ploughshares, and anthologies, and his nonfiction in GQ, New York Times, and elsewhere, including Italian journals. Domini has also translated literary works, and he has served as a visiting writer at many universities, including Harvard and Northwestern. W. S. DiPiero

Nathan J. Jandl. Born in Burlington, Vermont, and raised in northwestern Massachusetts, Nathan J. Jandl has a lifelong connection to the geographical and social landscapes of New England. Jandl received his B.A. in English from Middlebury College and is currently continuing his studies in the Ph.D. program in literature at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. His work focuses on modern and contemporary poetry, interdisciplinary environmental studies, and ecocritical theory. DAVID BUDBILL

Rob Johnson. Rob Johnson is the editor of Fantasmas: Supernatural Stories by Mexican-American Writers (Bilingual Review Press, 2001) and the author of The Lost Years of William S. Burroughs: Beats in South Texas (Texas A&M University Press, 2006). He teaches a course on South Texas literature at the University of Texas-Pan American, where he is a professor of literature. He lives in McAllen, Texas. ROLANDO HINOJOSA

Claire Keyes. Claire Keyes is the author of a book of poems, The Question of Rapture (Mayapple Press, 2008). Professor emerita at Salem State College where she taught English for thirty years, she has also written The Aesthetics of Power: The Poetry of Adrienne Rich (University of Georgia Press, 1986). Her poems and reviews have appeared in the Calyx, Valparaiso Review, and Women’s Review of Books, among others. Her 1999 chapbook, Rising and Falling, won the Foothills Poetry Competition. She is a resident of Marblehead, Massachusetts. JENNIFER EGAN

Kathleen McDonald. Kathleen McDonald is an assistant professor of English at Kentucky Wesleyan College. He is the author of The Search for Origins in the Twentieth-Century Long Poem (West Virginia University Press, 2007) and Understanding Charles Wright (University of South Carolina Press, 2008). He has also published essays on figures such as Derek Walcott, Kenneth Koch, and David Jones. MARK HALLIDAY

Joe Moffett. Joe Moffett is an associate professor of English at Kentucky Wesleyan College. He is the author of The Search for Origins in the Twentieth-Century Long Poem (West Virginia University Press, 2007) and Understanding Charles Wright (University of South Carolina Press, 2008). He has also published essays on figures such as Derek Walcott, Kenneth Koch, and David Jones. MARK HALLIDAY

Robert Niemi. Robert Niemi-coordinates the American Studies Program and teaches courses on American literature, film, and critical theory at St. Michael’s College. Dr. Niemi has published extensively on American writers and cultural studies topics. His latest book is History in the Media: Film and Television (ABC-CLIO, 2006). MARK HALLIDAY

Louis H. Palmer III. Louis H. Palmer III is an associate professor of American literature at Castleton State College, where he teaches a wide variety of classes in literature, composition, and public speaking. He is also a member of the editorial board for the Journal of Popular Culture. His research interests include twentieth-century Southern fiction, environmental and regional literatures, American gothic fiction, and the interactions of race, class, and gender.

Chris Offutt

Sanford Pinsker. Sanford Pinsker is an emeritus professor at Franklin & Marshall College where he taught courses in American literature. He has published hundreds of articles, reviews, and poems for newspapers and magazines such as the New York Times, Wall Street Journal, Partisan Review, Georgia Review, Sewanee Review, and Virginia Quarterly Review. Albert Murray

Steven P. Schneider. Steven P. Schneider is the author of a collection of poems entitled Unexpected Guests (2008) and a critical study A. R. Ammons and the Poetics of Widening Scope (1994). He is also editor of the essay collection Complexities of Motion: New Essays on A. R. Ammons’s Long Poems (1999). Along with the artist Reefka Schneider, he created the poetry-art exhibit Borderlines: Drawing Border Lives. Ted Kooser

Lea M. Williams. Lea M. Williams is an assistant professor of English at Norwich University. Her research and teaching interests include the literature of war, memoirs and autobiography, and gender studies. She is currently working on a project that investigates the intersections of gender and memory in women’s twentieth-century writings about war and its aftermath. Philip Caputo