

List of Contributors

Anya Clayworth. Teaching fellow in English at the University of St. Andrews, Scotland. She is editor of The Selected Journalism of Oscar Wilde (2004) and has written widely on Oscar Wilde. MICHAEL ONDAATJE (with Chris Jones)

Clare Connors. Lecturer in English Language and Literature at The Queen's College and Merton College, Oxford, where she teaches literature from 1740 to the present day. She has published widely on various aspects of literary theory and criticism, including an essay on the early Freud in Between the psyche and the polis: Refiguring History (2000). She has lectured on Victorian and modern literature in both the United States and Japan. JEAN RHYS

Gareth Cornwell. Senior Lecturer in English at Rhodes University in South Africa. He has published numerous essays and reviews, mainly in the field of African literature. Former editor of the journals English in Africa and New Coin Poetry, and is currently working on The Columbia Guide to South African Literature Since 1945 for Columbia University Press. CHINUA ACHEBE

Richard Davenport-Hines. Formerly on the staff of the London School of Economics and a freelance author since 1986. He is a trustee of the London Library, a fellow of the Royal Historical Society, a research associate of the Oxford Dictionary of National Biography, and a past winner of the Wolfson Prize for History and Biography. His biography of W. H. Auden was published in 1996. Other recent books include Gothic: Four Hundred Years of Excess, Horror, Evil and Ruin (1999) and The Pursuit of Oblivion: A Global History of Narcotics (2002). CHRISTINA STEAD

Joseph Dewey. Associate Professor of English at the University of Pittsburgh. He is the author of In a Dark Time: The Apocalyptic Temper in the American Novel of the Nuclear Age (1992); Novels from Reagan's America: A New Realism (1999); and Understanding Richard Powers (2002). In addition to numerous articles and reviews on contemporary literature, Dewey has coedited casebooks on the short fiction of Henry James and on Don DeLillo's Underworld. He is currently completing work on a study of DeLillo. PATRICK WHITE

Amanda Fields. M.F.A. student in nonfiction at the University of Minnesota. She received her B.A. in English from Millikin University and her M.A. in English from Iowa State University. She is working on a manuscript about farming and family life in Illinois and teaches creative writing and literature at the University of Minnesota. BHARATI MUKHERJEE

Peter Filkins. Associate Professor of English at Simon's Rock College of Bard. Filkins is the author of numerous reviews and essays, as well as two volumes of poetry, What She Knew (1998) and After Homer (2002). His translation of the collected poems of Ingeborg Bachmann, Songs in Flight (1994), received an Outstanding Translation Award from the American Literary Translators Association. He is the recipient of grants and fellowships from the Fulbright Commission, Massachusetts Cultural Council, Yaddo, MacDowell, and the Millay Colony. SALMAN RUSHDIE

Lucy Valerie Graham. Commonwealth Scholar at the University of Oxford. She is currently reading for a D.Phil. on South African literature, and is the author of a number of academic articles and reviews, mainly on the subject of South African literature, with a focus on gender studies and the fiction of J. M. Coetzee. She obtained a Master of Arts degree in English literature at Rhodes University in South Africa in 1996 and lectured in South Africa for three years before coming to the United Kingdom to pursue further studies. J. M. COETZEE AND LEWIS NKOSI

WORLD WRITERS IN ENGLISH

Priyamvada Gopal. Lecturer in English at the University of Cambridge and Fellow, Churchill College. She has published widely on the literature and culture of the Indian subcontinent. Her book, Literary Radicalism in India: Gender, Nation and the Transition to Independence is forthcoming with Routledge. AMITAV GHOSH

Michael Gorra. Professor of English at Smith College. He is the author of The English Novel at Mid-Century and After Empire: Scott, Naipaul, Rushdie. A frequent contributor to the New York Times Book Review and the Times Literary Supplement, he is a past winner of the Nona Balakian Citation for Excellence in Reviewing from the National Book Critics Circle. His new book, The Bells in Their Silence: Travels Through Germany, will be published in 2004. V. S. NAIPAUL

Tracie Church Guzzio. Assistant professor of English at the State University of New York at Plattsburgh. She teaches courses in African American literature and literary theory. She is currently working on two manuscripts: a study of John Edgar Wideman's work and an analysis of the figure of the double in African and African American literature. NGŪGĨ WA THIONG'O

Patricia B. Heaman. Professor of English Emerita at Wilkes University, Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania. She is the author of numerous articles and reviews, including essays on George Eliot, Elizabeth Gaskell, Dorothy Richardson, Flora Thompson, Mary Wollstonecraft, Flannery O'Connor, and others in Women in World History. She has written a critical essay on John Updike's Rabbitt, Run for American Writers Classics and articles on William Faulkner and John Updike for the Encyclopedia of American Literature. KATHERINE MANSFIELD

Brian Henry. Associate Professor of English and Director of the Creative Writing Program at the University of Georgia. He is the author of three books of poetry—Astronaut (2000), American Incident (2002), and Graft (2003)—and an editor of Verse magazine. More than two hundred of his poems have appeared in such magazines as The Paris Review, American Poetry Review, The Yale Review, and The New Republic. His criticism appears in the New York Times Book Review, Boston Review, and many other publications. He is a former Fulbright Scholar to Australia. JOHN FORBES AND JOHN KINSELLA

Philip Hobsbaum. Retired Professor of English literature. Studied under F.R. Leavis for the English Tripos at Cambridge and with William Empson for a Ph.D. at the University of Sheffield, of which he is also an Honorary Litt.D. His thesis was published in 1970 as (in the United States) Theory of Criticism, and was followed by further works of criticism, including Tradition and Experiment in English Poetry (1979), Essentials of Literary Criticism (1983) and Metre, Rhythm and Verse Form (1996). For thirty-one years he taught at the University of Glasgow, retiring in 1997 as Professor of English Literature. FLEUR ADCKOCK, JENI COUZYN, JACK MAPANJE, AND ARTHUR NORTJE

Chris Jones. Lecturer in English at the University of St. Andrews, Scotland. Jones won the 2001 Review of English Studies essay prize for work on Auden and has forthcoming articles with the journals TEXT and Paideuma. He is currently writing a book on Old English as used by nineteenth- and twentieth-century poets. MICHAEL ONDAATJE (with Anya Clayworth)

WORLD WRITERS IN ENGLISH

Ketu H. Katrak. Chair of the Department of Asian American Studies and professor of English and comparative literature at the University of California, Irvine. Katrak specializes in postcolonial literature from Africa, India, the Caribbean, third world women writers, and Asian American literature. Publications include Wole Soyinka and Modern Tragedy: A Study of Dramatic Theory and Practice (1986), on the Nigerian Nobel laureate; on African women writers: Afterward to Ama Ata Aidoo's No Sweetness Here (Feminist Press, 1996); essays on Buchi Emecheta, Bessie Head, and third world feminism published in College Literature, The Journal of Commonwealth Literature, and Modern Fiction Studies. Co-guest-editor on "Desh-Videsh: South Asian Expatriate Writing and Art" in The Massachusetts Review, XXIX (1988–1989). Current research on diasporic and South Asian American writers; on immigrant identities and the role of expressive arts in diasporic locations. BESSIE HEAD

Amitava Kumar. Associate Professor of English at Pennsylvania State University. Author of Passport Photos (2000) and Bombay-London-New York (2002). Editor of numerous collections, including World Bank Literature (2002) and Away: The Indian Writer as an Expatriate (2003). VIKRAM SETH

John Lennard. Professor and writer. Lennard teaches for the University of Notre Dame and the British-American Drama Academy in London, at Cambridge University, and on-line for Fairleigh Dickinson. He is the author of two best-selling textbooks, The Poetry Handbook and (with Mary Luckhurst) The Drama Handbook, both published by Oxford University Press, and of monographs on punctuation history and Anglo-India. R. K. NARAYAN, PAUL SCOTT, AND DEREK WALCOTT

Gail Low. Lecturer in English at the University of Dundee. She has published articles in New Formations, Women, Research into African Literatures, Kunapipi, Wasafiri, Journal of Com- monwealth Literature and is the author of White Skins/Black Masks (Routledge, 1996). She teaches contemporary literature and is currently researching the rise of commonwealth literature in the United Kingdom. CARYL PHILLIPS

Sean O'Brien. Poet, critic, playwright, broadcaster, and editor. His five collections of poetry have all won awards, one from the American Academy of Arts and Letters. Other publications include Cousin Coat: Selected Poems 1976–2001 (Picador, 2002), a verse version of Aristophanes' Birds, staged at the National Theatre in London (Methuen, 2002); a book of essays, The Deregulated Muse (Picador 1998). He teaches in the writing program at Sheffield University in the United Kingdom. PETER PORTER

Jeffrey F. L. Partridge. Assistant Professor of English at Central Connecticut State University. He teaches American literature and specializes in Asian-American literature. A graduate of the National University of Singapore Ph.D. program, he lived and taught in Asia from 1992 to 2002. ARUNDHATI ROY

Rajeev S. Patke. Associate professor at the National University of Singapore. He is the author of The Long Poems of Wallace Stevens (1985), coeditor of Institutions in Cultures: Theory and Practice (1996) and Complicities: Connections and Divisions (2003). He contributed the chapter "Poetry since Independence" to An Illustrated History of Indian Literature in English (2002), and has published on postcolonial writing in a number of books and journals, including Postmodern Culture, Diacritics, and New Formations. AGHA SHAHID ALI AND A. K. RAMANUJAN

Sylvia Bailey Shurbutt. Professor of English at Shepherd College. She has authored chapters and books and published extensively on nineteenth- and twentieth-century women writers in a variety of journals and volumes, including Victorian Poetry, Women's Studies, and Southern Literary Journal. MARGARET ATWOOD

WORLD WRITERS IN ENGLISH

Andrew van der Vlies. Doctoral student at Lincoln College, University of Oxford. He has an M.A. from Rhodes University in South Africa, an M. Phil. from Oxford, and is completing a D. Phil. thesis on the publication and reception histories of South African literatures in Britain. Andrew has published on Olive Schreiner and late-nineteenth-century British publishing and reading cultures, and has research and teaching interests in twentieth-century British and American writing, colonial and postcolonial literatures, book history and the institutions of publishing, transnational modernisms, literary theory, and contemporary fiction. OLIVE SCHREINER

Paul Vlitos. Writer and Ph.D. student at the University of Cambridge, England. His doctoral thesis, provisionally entitled "Reading Food," explores the role of food and eating as a cultural marker in the international novel in English. He is examining the links between eating and issues of identity and community in the work of novelists including V.S. Naipaul, Anita Desai, Timothy Mo, and Salman Rushdie. He is also preparing an article for eventual publication on "hauntings" in the novels of Kazuo Ishiguro. TIMOTHY MO

Christopher Warnes. Ph.D. candidate at the University of Cambridge in England. He has attended the Universities of Cape Town and Natal, Pietermaritzburg. He has published articles on South African literature, and his dissertation is on magical realism in the postcolonial novel. BEN OKRI

Karma Waltonen. Associate in English at University of California, Davis, where she is pursuing her Ph.D. She is also an adjunct faculty member at American River College and Sacramento City College. She has an article on Margaret Atwood in the forthcoming Identity and Alterity in Canadian Literature. Though her research interests are diverse, she specializes in drama and gender studies. JAMAICA KINCAID

Dana Cairns Watson. Professor. Has taught writing and twentieth-century American literature at Middlebury College, Santa Monica College, and UCLA. Her book The Essence of What Happens: Gertrude Stein and the Making of Conversation is forthcoming from Vanderbilt University Press. She has contributed essays on Tim O'Brien, Barbara Kingsolver, and Paule Marshall to Scribner's American Writers Series. ALICE MUNRO

J. Chris Westgate. Graduate student in English at the University of California, Davis. He has published several articles on modern dramatists, including Arthur Miller, Eugene O'Neill, and David Mamet. He has chaired panels devoted to contemporary drama at the American Literature Association and at the Pacific Ancient and Modern Language Association. His dissertation will examine how twentieth-century dramatists, from O'Neill through Mamet to today's newest playwrights, exploit offstage spaces to denaturalize audience expectations. WOLE SOYINKA