

Reader's Guide

R*enaissance and Reformation: Biographies* presents the biographies of women and men relevant to the Renaissance and Reformation period in Europe. Among the fifty people profiled in each of the two volumes are artists, authors, religious leaders, musicians, scientists, and kings and queens who helped to define this ever-changing period in European history. Renaissance and Reformation: Biographies does not include only biographies of readily recognizable figures of the era, such as German religious leader and reformer Martin Luther, Italian artist Leonardo da Vinci, and English playwright William Shakespeare, but it also includes profiles of lesser-known people, such as Italian scholar Isotta Nogarla, the author of the first piece of feminist writing, and Jewish court official Isaac Abrabanel, who protested the persecution of Spanish Jews.

Additional features

Renaissance and Reformation: Biographies also contains short biographies of people who are in some way connected with the main biographee and sidebar boxes highlighting interesting information. More than one hundred black-and-white illustrations enliven the text, while cross-references are made to other people profiled in the two-volume set. Each entry concludes with a list of sources—including Web sites—for further information for additional study, and both volumes contain a timeline, a glossary, and a cumulative index of the people and subjects discussed in Renaissance and Reformation: Biographies.
