CONTENTS

FOREWORD ................................................................................................................................. xiii

PREFACE .................................................................................................................................... xv

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS ................................................................................................................ xvii

LIST OF PRODUCTIONS AND BIBLIOGRAPHY .................................................................. 3

1911-1940

POEMS: Thomas Williams, “Nature’s Thanksgiving” and “Old Things” ................................. 11

ESSAY: Thomas Lanier Williams, “Can a Good Wife Be a Good Sport?” ............................... 13

LETTER: Williams to his parents, 1929 ..................................................................................... 19

LETTER: Williams to Dakin Williams, 1935 ............................................................................. 22

ARTICLE: “Thomas L. Williams and Reka Neilson Win Verse Prizes of Wednesday Club” .... 23

INTERVIEW: DLB; DS with William Jay Smith ......................................................................... 25

REVIEW: Reed Hynds, “Mummers’ Play Brilliantly Done, Though Inconclusive” (Fugitive Kind) ........................................................................................................ 34

ARTICLE: Associated Press, “Roving Playwright Is From St. Louis” .................................... 40

REVIEW: “Miriam Hopkins at Wilbur; ‘Battle of Angels’ Is Full of Exciting Episodes” .......... 42

ARTICLE: “Play Must Have Lines Taken Out” (Battle of Angels) ........................................ 43

ESSAY: Tennessee Williams, “The History of a Play (With Parentheses)” (Battle of Angels) .... 44

1941-1945

LETTER: Williams to Donald Windham, 1942 ......................................................................... 50

LETTER: Williams to Donald Windham, 1943 ......................................................................... 52

PREFACES: Tennessee Williams, “Preface to My Poems—Frivolous Version” and “Preface to My Poems—Serious Version” (The Summer Belvedere) ................................. 54

ARTICLE: William Inge, “St. Louis Personalities: ‘Tennessee’ Williams, Playwright, Author” ................................................................. 58

REVIEW: Claudia Cassidy, “Fragile Drama Holds Theater in Tight Spell” (The Glass Menagerie) ................................................................................................................... 59

COLUMN: Claudia Cassidy, “On the Aisle” (The Glass Menagerie) ..................................... 61

REVIEW: George Jean Nathan, “Eddie Dowling Again Proves Faith in a Play” (The Glass Menagerie) .................................................................................. 64

ARTICLE: “Glass Menagerie’ Receives Award of N. Y. Drama Critics” ................................ 67

ARTICLE: Tennessee Williams, “The Author Tells Why It Is Called ‘The Glass Menagerie’ ” 68
CONTENTS

INTERVIEW: “The Life and Ideas of Tennessee Williams” (The Glass Menagerie) .................................................. 70

1946-1950

BOOK REVIEW: Denham Sutcliffe, “Tennessee Williams” (27 Wagons Full of Cotton and Other One-Act Plays) .......................................................... 74

TRIBUTE: Tennessee Williams, “An Appreciation [of Laurette Taylor]” ................................................................. 75

REVIEW: W. E. Oliver, “One-Acters Fine Stage Bill; Jessica Tandy Wins Ovation in Role” (Moony’s Kid Don’t Cry, The Last of My Solid Gold Watches, Portrait of a Madonna) ............................................ 77

LETTER: Hume Cronyn to Audrey Wood, 1947 ......................................................... 78

INTERVIEW: DLB: DS with Hume Cronyn ................................................................. 79

REVIEW: “Pasa Preem Finds Williams’ Stairs to Roof’ Rickety” .................................................. 81

LOG: Margo Jones, “Summer and Smoke, by Tennessee Williams” .............................. 82

NOTEBOOK: Elia Kazan’s notes for A Streetcar Named Desire, 1947 .................................................. 85

REVIEW: Brooks Atkinson, “First Night at the Theatre” (A Streetcar Named Desire) .............. 92

REVIEW: Joseph Wood Krutch, “Drama” (A Streetcar Named Desire) ................................................. 95

EXCERPT: R. C. Lewis, “A Playwright Named Tennessee” ............................................. 97

ESSAY: Jessica Tandy, “One Year of Blanche DuBois” .................................................. 99

LETTER: Williams to St. Louis Post-Dispatch, 1948 .................................................. 102

LETTER: Williams to Donald Windham, 1948 .................................................. 102

ARTICLE: “The Theater: The Streetcar Arrives” .................................................. 105

LETTER: Jessica Tandy to Williams, 1948 .................................................. 105

ESSAY: Robert Downing, “Streetcar Conductor: Some Notes From Backstage” .................. 107

BOOK REVIEW: William Peden, “Broken Apollos and Blasted Dreams” (One Arm and Other Stories) .................................................. 112

REVIEW: Eric., “At the Play” (The Glass Menagerie) .................................................. 113

ARTICLE: Tennessee Williams, “Questions Without Answers” (Summer and Smoke) .................. 114

ARTICLE: John Mason Brown, “People Versus Characters” (Summer and Smoke) .................. 116

ARTICLE: Irving Drutman, “No New Play by Williams for a Year” .................................................. 120

ARTICLE: T. C. Worsley, “The Arts and Entertainment: Theatre and State” (A Streetcar Named Desire) .................................................. 122

INTERVIEW: Eileen Creelman, “Screen ‘Streetcar’ Gets Author’s Nod” .......................... 125

BOOK REVIEW: “Jam of the Gods” (The Roman Spring of Mrs. Stone) .................. 127

BOOK REVIEW: Tennessee Williams, “The Human Psyche—Alone” (The Delicate Prey and Other Stories, by Paul Bowles) .................................................. 128

1951-1956

REVIEW: Otis L. Guernsey, Jr., “The Theaters” (The Rose Tattoo) .................................................. 130
CONTENTS

REVIEW: Richard Watts, Jr., “Two-on-the-Aisle: Mr. Williams Among the Sicilians” (The Rose Tattoo) ... 131
INTERVIEW: Vernon Rice, “The Talking Tennessee Williams” (Camino Real) ... 135
REVIEW: Walter F. Kerr, “Camino Real” ... 137
LETTER: Walter Kerr to Williams, 1953 ... 139
ARTICLE: William Hawkins, “Camino Real?—Just Enjoy It!” ... 141
LETTER: Williams to Donald Windham, 1953 ... 142
REVIEW: Brooks Atkinson, “Theatre: Tennessee Williams’ ‘Cat’” (Cat on a Hot Tin Roof) ... 144
ARTICLE: Eric Bentley, “Tennessee Williams and New York Kazan” (Cat on a Hot Tin Roof) ... 146
ARTICLE: Marya Mannes, “The Morbid Magic of Tennessee Williams” ... 152
REVIEW: Arthur Knight, “The Magnificent Magnani” (The Rose Tattoo) ... 155
ESSAY: Kenneth Tynan, “Valentine to Tennessee Williams” ... 158
LETTER: Williams to drama editor of New York Times, 1956 ... 160
REVIEW: Donald Hall, “New Books in Review” (In the Winter of Cities) ... 161
REVIEW: Paul V. Beckley, “Three One-Act Plays Open at Cherry Lane Theatre,” and Geor., “Off-Broadway” (This Property Is Condemned) ... 163
ARTICLE: “Cardinal Scores Baby Doll Film” ... 164
REVIEW: Robert Hatch, “Films” (Baby Doll) ... 166
INTERVIEW: Michael Ciment, “Tennessee Williams and the South: A Streetcar Named Desire (1950), Baby Doll (1956)” ... 167

1957-1961

INTERVIEW: Don Ross, “Williams in Art and Morals: An Anxious Foe of Untruth” (Orpheus Descending) ... 176
REVIEW: Wolcott Gibbs, “Well, Descending, Anyway” (Orpheus Descending) ... 179
INTERVIEW: Don Ross, “Williams on a Hot Tin Roof” ... 182
REVIEW: Harold Clurman, “Theatre” (Garden District) ... 184
MOCK INTERVIEW: Marya Mannes, “Theater: Something Unspeakable” (Garden District) ... 185
ARTICLE: Robert Rice, “A Man Named Tennessee” ... 187
REVIEW: Albert Johnson, “Cat on a Hot Tin Roof” ... 190
INTERVIEW: Mike Wallace, “Tennessee Williams” ... 192
REVIEW: Robert Coleman, “‘Sweet Bird’ Sure-Fire Hit” (Sweet Bird of Youth) ... 195
REVIEW: John Chapman, “Williams’ ‘Sweet Bird of Youth’ Weird, Sordid and Fascinating” ... 196
INTERVIEW: Dick Moore, “Tennessee Williams” ... 198
CONTENTS

REVIEW: Robert Hatch, “Films” (Suddenly Last Summer) .................................................. 204
ARTICLE: “Tennessee Williams Presents His POV” .......................................................... 207
INTERVIEW: “Unbecastly Williams” (Period of Adjustment) ............................................. 210
REVIEW: Frank Aston, “Williams Play at the Hayes” (Period of Adjustment) ..................... 213
INTERVIEW: Michel Mok, “Tennessee Williams Writes Off Boredom” (Period of Adjustment) 214
TRIBUTE: Tennessee Williams, “Five Fiery Ladies” ......................................................... 215
INTERVIEW: Lewis Funke and John E. Booth, “Williams on Williams” ................................ 218
REVIEW: Howard Taubman, “Theatre: ‘Night of the Iguana’ Opens” ................................. 224
REVIEW: John Simon, “The Night of the Iguana” .............................................................. 226

1962-1969

ARTICLE: Tennessee Williams, “The Agent as Catalyst, Part I” ........................................... 228
ARTICLE: Peter Evans, “Tennessee Wants to Unsweeten Ava” (The Night of the Iguana) .... 233
INTERVIEW: Joanne Stang, “Williams: 20 Years After ‘Glass Menagerie’” ......................... 235
ARTICLE: Rex Reed, “Tennessee Williams Took His Name Off It” (This Property Is Condemned) 238
ARTICLE: Tennessee Williams, “Tennessee Williams: The Wolf and I” (The Night of the Iguana) 240
REVIEW: John McClain, “The Out and the Abstract” (Slapstick Tragedy) ......................... 242
BOOK REVIEW: Brooks Atkinson, “A Theater of Life” (The Knightly Quest) ....................... 244
NOTES: Tennessee Williams, “Notes for The Two Character Play” ................................... 246
ARTICLE: Tennessee Williams, “‘Happiness Is Relevant,’ to Mr. Williams” ........................ 247
REVIEW: Richard Watts, Jr., “The Drama of Three Misfits” (The Seven Descents of Myrtle) ..... 249
ARTICLE: “Tennessee Williams is baptized at St. Mary’s” .................................................. 253
SPEECHES: Lillian Hellman, “Presentation to Tennessee Williams of the Gold Medal for Drama,” 255
and Tennessee Williams, “Acceptance by Mr. Williams” ................................................... 255
ARTICLE: Richard Watts, Jr., “Notes on Tennessee Williams” (In the Bar of a Tokyo Hotel) ... 255

1970-1975

INTERVIEW: David Frost, Interview with Tennessee Williams, broadcast on the David Frost Show 257
ARTICLE: Tom Buckley, “Tennessee Williams Survives” .................................................. 269
ARTICLE: Claudia Cassidy, “Tennessee Williams—a Theater Orpheus Who Looked Back” .... 279
REVIEW: Harold C. Schonberg, “‘Summer and Smoke’ at City Opera” ............................... 282
CONTENTS

REVIEW: Harold Clurman, “Theatre” (Small Craft Warnings) .................................................. 283

ARTICLE: Tennessee Williams, “Homage to Key West” .......................................................... 286

REVIEW: Rex Reed, “Tennessee’s ‘Out Cry’: A Colossal Bore” .............................................. 287

EXCERPTS: Robert C. Jennings, “Playboy Interview: Tennessee Williams” .......................... 289

BOOK REVIEW: Ned Rorem, “Tennessee Now and Then” (Eight Mortal Ladies Possessed) ... 293

REVIEW: Foster Hirsch, “Moise and the World of Reason by Tennessee Williams” .............. 295

REVIEW: Carolyn Clay, “Dead Battery: The Streetcar Breaks Down” (The Red Devil Battery Sign) .......................................................... 297

REVIEW: Gerald Weales, “Memoirs by Tennessee Williams” .................................................. 300

REVIEW ARTICLE: Gore Vidal, “Selected Memories of the Glorious Bird and the Golden Age” (Memoirs) .................................................. 303

INTERVIEW: John Baker with Kate Medina .......................................................... 313

1976-1981

ARTICLE: James Armstrong, “Tennessee Williams: Creating ‘This Is (An Entertainment)’ ” .... 315

REVIEW: Clive Barnes, “Stage: Williams’s ‘Eccentricities’ ” (The Eccentricities of a Nightingale) ............................................................................ 318

BOOK REVIEW: Gerald Weales, “Androgynie, Mon Amour by Tennessee Williams” ........ 319

ARTICLE: Don Lee Keith, “The Williams/Capote Clash: Fear and Loathing ‘Neath the Old Magnolias” ........................................................................... 321

REVIEW: William A. Raedy, “‘Vieux Carre’ Play Opens” ...................................................... 330

EXCERPT: Cecil Brown, “Interview with Tennessee Williams” .............................................. 331

REVIEW: Helen C. Smith, “Williams’ ‘Tiger Tail’ Is a Rewarding Experience” .................... 342

REVIEW: John Simon, “The Sports of Spoleto” (Creve Coeur) .............................................. 345

BOOK REVIEW: Jack Sullivan, “Where I Live: Selected Essays” ........................................ 347

REVIEW: Gerald Weales, “Tennessee’s Waltz: Familiar Williams Themes” (A Lovely Sunday for Creve Coeur) ........................................................ 348

ARTICLE: Madeleine Blais, “Three Scenes from the Life of a Tormented Playwright: At Wit’s End at Land’s End” .......................................................... 350

REVIEW: Jim Tucci, “Send Merriwether Back to Memphis” (Will Mr. Merriwether Return from Memphis?) .......................................................... 357

REVIEW: Harold Clurman, “Clothes for a Summer Hotel” .................................................... 359

INTERVIEW: Dotson Rader, “The Art of Theater V: Tennessee Williams” ......................... 361
CONTENTS

1982-1983

REVIEW: Richard Christiansen, "Tennessee Williams's Freak House Is Doomed by a Weak Foundation"
(A House Not Meant To Stand) ............................................. 381

ARTICLE: Richard Christiansen, "The Pain, Risk and Tumult of Staging Williams' New Play"
(A House Not Meant To Stand) ............................................. 382

OBITUARY: "Playwright Dead" (Key West Citizen) ............................................. 387

OBITUARY: John Pope, "Freedom He Found in N.O. Made City Home to Tennessee"
(New Orleans Times-Picayune) ............................................. 392

TRIBUTE: James Laughlin, "Tennessee" ............................................. 393

OBITUARY: Patrick Gauen and Bill Smith, "Playwright's Bitter Days Here Recalled"
(St. Louis Globe-Democrat) ............................................. 394

TRIBUTE: Gore Vidal, "'The Bird' Has Flown" ............................................. 397

INTERVIEW: DLB: DS with Dakin Williams ............................................. 399

TRIBUTE: John Simon, "Poet of the Theater" ............................................. 405

AFTERWORD: Louis Auchincloss, "Tennessee Williams: The Last Puritan" .......... 409

PERMISSIONS AND SOURCES ............................................. 411

CUMULATIVE INDEX ............................................. 415